

The Ornithological Society of New Zealand (Inc)

Joining/subscription renewal membership form for Overseas members

The Ornithological Society of New Zealand (OSNZ) promotes the study of birds by organising, providing some equipment and helping to fund bird study in New Zealand.

We publish quarterly a world-renowned scientific journal ('Notornis'), a magazine ('Southern Bird') and occasional books that make available the results of bird studies in New Zealand, the southwest Pacific and Antarctica.

OSNZ is a voluntary and charitable society that depends on the enthusiasm, active participation, knowledge and financial support of its members. We have field trips that you can participate in to learn more about birds, where to find them and how to study them.

OSNZ is not a conservation organisation, but the studies its members carry out provide vital information on which sound conservation decisions can be made.
